There are many individuals who contributed to the completion of this revised edition of the Tutor Training Handbook. Their mention on this page is just one small way of showing my appreciation for their work and support.

Tom Gier and Karan Hancock edited the original edition of the Tutor Training Handbook in 1996 as well as contributing several articles. Tom and Karan graciously gave their permission for this revision of the Handbook and provided copies of the author agreement, timelines, and correspondence from the 1996 edition.

The 2001-2002 CRLA Board approved the proposal for the revised Handbook, provided encouragement to the editor when work was piling up, and provided complimentary copies of the Handbook to all authors and to members of the ITCP Committee. Special note must be made of the role played by Vicki Papineau, Membership Coordinator – she provided a disk copy of the 1996 Handbook so that I could get to work.

The authors of the chapters, articles, and essays are mentioned in the Preface and I want to express my appreciation to them here for their hard work, for their willingness to let me edit the product of their hard work, and for their patience throughout the process. On a sad note, Lesley Jones, one of the authors, was killed in a car accident before the Handbook was published.

My husband, Chuck, provided moral support and reminders that this would not be a “Saturday” project forever. I will be glad to have my Saturdays back for other things.

Last, but definitely, not least, I must acknowledge the outstanding design work on the cover of the Handbook. Trent Stainbrook, better known as Trent and a student at the University of Northern Iowa, designed the cover.
